In addition to their research, faculty members teaching the Undergraduate Economics Program pursue excellence in the classroom. The faculty is committed to providing students with an environment in which knowledge is disseminated and intellectual risks are encouraged.

- Laurence Ales, Associate Professor of Economics; Ph.D., University of Minnesota;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Macroeconomics, Optimal Taxation, and Contract Theory

- Katherine Anderson, Assistant Professor of Economics and Entrepreneurship; Ph.D., University of Michigan;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Social Networks, Innovation, Knowledge-based Production, Teams, and Science of Science

- David Childers, Assistant Professor of Economics; Ph.D., Yale University;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Econometrics, Macroeconomics, and Computational Economics

- Karen Clay, Professor of Economics and Public Policy, H. J. Heinz III College; Ph.D., Stanford University;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Energy and Environmental Economics, Economic History, and Demography

- Ross Doppelt, Visiting Assistant Professor of Economics; Ph.D., New York University;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Macroeconomics: Search, Growth, and Time Series.

- Selman Erol, Assistant Professor of Economics; Ph.D., University of Pennsylvania;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Economic Theory, Financial Networks, and Network Formation.

- Christina Fong, Senior Research Scientist in Social and Decision Sciences, Dietrich College of Humanities and Social Sciences; Ph.D., University of Massachusetts;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Public Economics, Experimental Economics, and Behavioral Economics.

- Marty Gaynor, E.J. Barone Professor of Economics and Health Policy, H. J. Heinz III College; Ph.D., Northwestern University;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Health Economics and Intermediate Economic Analysis

- John Gasper, Associate Teaching Professor of Economics; Ph.D., Carnegie Mellon University;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Political Economy, Game Theory, Decision Sciences, and Quantitative Analysis.

- Carol Goldburg, Executive Director, Undergraduate Economics Program; Adjunct Professor of Economics; Ph.D., Carnegie Mellon University;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Political Economy, Applied Game Theory, History of Economic Thought, and Economics Education

- Marvin Goodfriend, Friends of Allan Meltzer Professorship; Professor of Economics; Ph.D., Brown University;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Macroeconomic Fluctuations. Monetary Theory and Policy, Banking and Financial Markets, and Economic Development

- Onur Kesten, Associate Professor of Economics; Ph.D., University of Rochester;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Economic Theory, Game Theory, and Mechanism Design

- Alexey Kushnir, Assistant Professor of Economics; Ph.D., Pennsylvania State University;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Economic Theory, Market and Mechanism Design, Network Theory, Matching Markets, and Auctions

- Nicholas Muller, Associate Professor of Economics, Engineering, and Public Policy; Lester and Judith Lave Development Chair in Economics, Engineering, and Public Policy; Ph.D., Yale;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Environmental Economics, Natural Resource Economics, and Mechanism Design for Environmental Policies, and Applied Microeconomics
• Selçuk Ozyurt, Visiting Assistant Professor of Economics; Ph.D., New York University;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Microeconomic Theory (Game Theory, Mechanism Design), Conflict Resolution, Mediation, Industrial Organization, Political Economy, and Experimental Economics
• Margarita Portnykh, Postdoctoral Fellow in Economics, H. J. Heinz III College; Ph.D., Clemson University;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Energy Economics and Environmental Economics
• Maryam Saeedi, Assistant Professor of Economics; Ph.D., University of Minnesota;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Market Design, Industrial Organization, and Game Theory
• Sinan Sarıçan, Visiting Assistant Professor of Economics; Ph.D., Carnegie Mellon University;
  Teaching and Research Interests:
• Ali Shourideh, Assistant Professor of Economics; Ph.D., University of Minnesota;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Macroeconomics, Public Finance, Financial Markets, Contract Theory, and Dynamic Games
• Marvin Sirbu, Professor, Engineering and Public Policy; Industrial Administration; Electrical and Computer Engineering; Sc.D, Massachusetts Institute of Technology;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Telecommunications Technology, Policy, and Management; Regulation and Industrial Structure of Computer and Communications Technologies; Communications Networks and Standards; Economics of Information and Networks; and Electronic Commerce.
• Christopher Sleet, Head, Economics Programs; Professor of Economics; Ph.D., Stanford University;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Public Economics, Macroeconomics
• Stephen Spear, Professor of Economics; Ph.D., University of Pennsylvania;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Dynamic General Equilibrium Theory, Game Theory, and Microeconomics
• V. Emily Stark, Assistant Teaching Professor of Business Communications; Ph.D., Carnegie Mellon University;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Rhetoric, Scientific and Professional Communications
• Shu Line Wee, Assistant Professor of Economics; Ph.D., University of Maryland
  Teaching and Research Interests: Macroeconomics, labor Economics, and Computational Economics
• Ariel Zetlin-Jones, Assistant Professor of Economics; Ph.D., University of Minnesota;
  Teaching and Research Interests: Macroeconomics, Business Cycles, Financial Frictions, and Banking