Uncommon skills.

You’re excellent at what you do. You have the drive to achieve your potential, a curiosity about the unknown and a limited attachment to comfort zones. We call that a “good start.”

But you also realize the need to back up your decisions with more than a gut feeling and the need to strengthen your leadership skills in order to get things done. That’s what makes you the Tepper type.

Tepper MBAs possess an unrivaled advantage honed through our renowned approach to leadership development alongside advanced analytics. It’s an approach that prepares our graduates to make better business decisions and maximizes leadership skills for successful implementation of those decisions across the organization — all of which you can learn without walking away from a job you do exceptionally well.

That’s why the name “Tepper” means more in the market — and why a Tepper MBA gives you the uncommon skills that allow you to stand apart.
A stand-out career.

Over 150,000 people will earn an MBA next year. Tepper MBAs are among the few who rise above that crowd. The Tepper School prepares you to perform at a higher level through a command of cutting-edge analytics and advanced leadership abilities. As a Tepper MBA, you’ll have the rare tools and problem-solving skills sought by employers. And as a part-time student, you’ll have the added advantage of proving those abilities on the job by applying in real time what you learn in the classroom.

You’ll also have access to the exact same career resources available to our full-time students through our acclaimed Career Opportunities Center (COC). Career coaching, on-campus recruiting, corporate presentations and connections to top jobs at premier companies — all are accessible to our part-time students.
Part-time students are vital members of the full Tepper School community. Starting from the top: Pitch Night, a forum to share ideas with all CMU graduate programs; the Winter Formal, another can’t-miss soirée; the International Festival, one of the Tepper School’s biggest social events; part-time students share classes with their full-time colleagues; small class sizes mean you’re part of a tight-knit group.

No matter how you earn it, it’s a Tepper MBA.

Whether full- or part-time, all of our programs deliver the same focus on leadership and analytics, and the same core curriculum taught by world-renowned faculty. So you know that you’ll graduate with the unique skills to stand apart in the marketplace.

In fact, because the learning is the same, you can switch to full-time for any reason — like an internship opportunity or career change. And you won’t miss a beat in the transition.

While we’re known for our rigorous curriculum, we welcome students from varied backgrounds who share a motivation to learn and a desire to gain the analytical and leadership skills that the Tepper School offers. That’s why when we admit you to the program, we know that you have what it takes to succeed while continuing to excel in your career.

As a Tepper MBA, you also get every advantage of a global alumni network to support you. Even if you plan to stay in Pittsburgh, you’ll have access to alumni leaders around the world at a moment’s notice. That’s a critical resource to have in today’s global economy.
Dive deeper and emerge above the rest.

Our curriculum develops leadership with an elevated analytics skill set. That’s because we know that this combination is highly sought-after in the marketplace.

Optimization, predictive and prescriptive modeling, and a deep economic understanding are among the analytical tools all of our students master. With a firm command of analytics, you’ll possess unmatched problem-solving abilities that enable you to identify optimal solutions.

At the same time, you’ll build the leadership skills to put those strategies in motion. Our Accelerate Leadership Center provides expertise and training from coaches, instructors and mentors who are your partners for one-on-one assessment, development, planning and implementation. That’s not something you’ll find at other programs.

It’s this combination that gives you the leadership and analytical skills to emerge above the rest.

The new center of the CMUniverse.

Imagine this: There you are, enjoying your coffee in the Tepper Quad hub — the dazzling B-school atrium flooded with sunshine — and beside you, two Carnegie Mellon engineering students are kicking around an idea for a new product that strikes you as absolutely ingenious. When you overhear them struggling with how to bring their idea to market, you’ll chime in, “Excuse me. I can help with that.”

In 2018, the new Tepper Quad will be open for business. Our new building will sit at the center of the Carnegie Mellon campus — elevating the business school as an inter-connected partner for all seven colleges and serving as the pivotal hub for exchanging ideas.

While you’re learning alongside management researchers and professors, you’ll interact at the Tepper Quad with entrepreneurs, architects, robotics designers, computer scientists and other brilliant, creative minds from around the world. And you’ll be taking advantage of it every day.
I bring more to the table on day-to-day tasks and meetings that continually impress my peers and superiors. This has resulted in opportunities to lead projects that I never thought that I could manage.

You’re in tight with an impressive crowd.

Every year, our new alumni start careers around the globe. But the remarkable thing is, the bonds they formed in B-school branch out and grow stronger. That’s what makes our alumni network such an incredible asset. Wherever you go, you’ll find it easy to make connections. Our alumni speak your language and open doors, anywhere in the world.
“The Tepper experience allowed me to grow as a leader, broaden my functional knowledge and deepen my industry expertise.”
